When Hancock wrote the "glorious" disputch he imagined the pen was mightier than the sword. But how hadly fooled he was!

The Democrats are put to their wits' trouble to explain matters.

When the Democrats in Congress increased the public expenditures 41 mil- The Latest Declaration of a lion dollars in five years, they are bothered to show why the party should have control of the entire government.

The only hope the Madison Democrat can give Mr. J. C. Gregory of an election to Congress by the Democrats in the Second district, is that "the district can be carried if the proper effort be made." This must be a dry crumb of comfort to the Democratic candidate for Congress.

Bonek and the Greenbackers do not harmonize this year. The Democrats want to fuse, but the Greenbackers place no confidence in Bonek, and will there fore oppose him. Bouck has not yet discovered a plan by which he can be consistent, and at the same time be a Greenbacker and a hard money Democrat.

Week after next the readers of the Gazette will be supplied, free of cost, with a full report of Senator Conkling's great speach in New York. It is the keynote of the Republican campaign, and the The Walworth County Fair livered in this country. Every man who votes should read the speech carefully. It will be a good investment of time.

The New York Times suggests that no fair-minded man can expect a different state of political affairs in Maine, unless there be a reform in it geography. It is enough to create lunacy to attempt to pronounce the names of the three or four hundred lakes in that State, the simplest of which are "Moosetne-maguntic," "Molechunkemunk," and "Welokenebacook." The Times advises the simple names of Maine's lakes and rivers, such as "Third or Fifteenth River, such lakes as Eighty-nine, or Three Hundred and Twelfth Lake, and such towns as Eight Hundred and Fifthville, Eight Hundred and Sixthville." And then adds: "Thus all the difficulties of Maine geography would disappear. The small boy would be enabled to study geography and to pass on to history, base-ball, algebra, and the use of the tin-horn, and ignorance would vanish from the State. The people who have been corrupted by the demoralizing names now in use would be-

ago. In 1876 it was a doubtful State, and the Democrats had strong hopes of carrying it for Tilden. It certainly received a liberal contribution from his barrel, and its loss sent the cipherers on a wild goose chase through the South for electoral votes. This year the State is left wholly out of Demceratic calculations. They have Club. no more prospect of carrying it than they have of carrying Massachusetts. And instead of the 6,000 plurality it gave Hayes, the Republicans are looking for a majority of 20,000 to 00,000. If the canvass is left to run itself the former figure will be reached. But as a Legislature is to be chosen which will elect a United States Sanator, the Republicans are going to work in earnest and expect to roll up a majority that will reach the latter figure. In Congressmen, also, a gain about a solid south; she is solid, thank of two for the Republicans is claimed as God. She was solid for Jeff Davis in almost certain. Taken altogether, the Badger State illustrates very well the greatly improved prospect of the party in the Presidential campaign."

Yesterday, the 23d, was the one hundredth anniversary of the capture of Major John Andre, at Tarrytown, on the Hudson. A national salute was fired at sunrise, and when the last gun had been fired, two war vessels stationed off the city responded, and then followed the steam whistles of other crafts on the river, of factories, and of locomotives, and church bells added to the chorus. When the hour of ten in the morning arrived, the precise hour at which Major Andre was captured, the battery on the shore and the ships in the river fired salutes. When this had been done, the bronze statue of "Patriotism," which marks the spot where he was captured, was unveiled, and where he was captured, was unveiled, and impressive ceremonies followed. It is said that 50,000 people witnessed the parade. The unfortunate death of Major Andre is one of the touching and sad chapters in our history. He was a spy, to be sure, and his execution was accordance with the rules and customs of war, and beside that, it was just; but there never died for the cause of one's country a manlier man than Major John Andre. He was young, brilliant, exceedingly well cultured, and there beat in his bosom a heart as true and noble as ever was borne by man; and he met his death with a complarency and a heroism that astonished and deeply touched those who saw him pay the penalty of his crime. The chapter of Benedict Arnold's treason and years.

Hou I. C. Sloan Opens the Campaign in the Capital City.

Madison, Sept. 23,-The Assembly chamber was crowded to suffocation tonight, the occasion being the opening of the campaign in the Capital City. The meeting was called to order by General David Atwood. The President of the Madison Garfield and Arthur Club, the Hon. I. C. Sloan, was then introduced by General Atwood. He was received with applause, and proceeded to give a history of the attempts of the Democratic party to extend slavery all over  $_{

PRESIDENT HAVES,

San Francisco, Sept. 23--A dispatch from Sacramento says the President and party visited the stock parade on the fair grounds this morning, where they met an immense and enthusiastic crowd. After the parade, the party took a special train for Chico. At Wheatland the train stopped for a few minutes. The President made a few remarks in response to the really heartfelt ovation of the people of the city and vicinity, who congregated in large numbers. The party arrived at Chico at 3 p. m., and were received by the militia, fire department, and a great erowd of people from the city and surrounding country.

BONDS AND BLOOD.

Washington, Sept. 23.—One of the romances of the treasury has been developed to-day, in the office of Judge Lawrence, first controller, in the shape of a letter from a San Francisco detective. About one year ago, a Mrs. Brumfield, of Kansas City, applied for $10,000 in registered bonds that had been held in the name of her husband. In her letter it was said her husband had been murdered. She asked to have the bonds turned over to her care, but her letter was not regarded as sufficient identification. The matter was referred to the first controller, and he decided that positive proof of identification should be given. Since that time the case las dragged on without any las dragged on without any very active steps being taken by the widow to push her claim. Now a letter has been received at the department from a San Francisco detective, who says the woman is now the wife of her first busband's murderer. The latter has also, according to the detective, just murdered his wife, so that he could marry Mrs. Brumfield without violating any social conventionalities. The two families were intimate until the murders consolidated the two. The detective's report will be investigated.

DEMOCRATIC ECONOMY.

How the Democrats in Congress Have Not Saved Money - Interesting Facts and Figures for the public

Whichever way we turn, reasons rise up before us for keeping the staff in the hands of those who have vastly most at stake in wholesome preservation of the government, its revenues, and its laws. Those with the least at stake fought for Those with the least at stake fought for one half the government, and now the question is whether we had better vote them both halves. The Democratic party has had possession of one house of Congress for four years, and both houses for two years. What useful thing has been done or proposed? They have stricken some millions of tax from whisky and tobacco. They have attempted by revosome millions of tax from whisky and tobacco. They have attempted by revolutionary means to put the Executive under duress, and to cripple the government in order to overthrow just and time-honored laws. What else? I do not know

It is said that the Democracy have reduced appropriations. I do not so understand it. The claim of economy is no better than a juggle. ### PRACTICAL JOKING.

The Killing of General Waite While Playing a Practical Joke.

The killing of Mr. Gould at the residence of his friend, Gen. Waite, by the colored man, Joseph Winn, is one of the most shocking events that has oc-curred in Chicago for many years, says the Tribune, and it does not relieve the painfulness of the sad affair that the death of Air. Gould was not the result of malice, revenge, or evil intention. On the other hand, the circumstances make it even more sorrowful than if it could be attributed to any of the above-mentioned motives. With the testimony before them, about which there could be no question, the jury of inquest could not do otherwise than justify the homicide and discharge the prisoner, as no blame attached to him in the premises.

This testimony showed that Mr. Gould and his friend, Gen. Waite, belonged to that altogether-too-numerous class in the community known as practical jokers. Visiting the rooms of the latter, they conceived the idea of playing a practical joke upon his major-domo, Winn, who had stepped out for a moment and carelessly left the door open, by making him think a bareless of the door open, making him think a burglar had been through the rooms. They disarranged various articles of furniture and cloth various articles of furniture and clothing, and then went into the bath-room and shut the door, to await the result when Winn should return. What the horrible result was is only too well known. Winn came back, and, finding every thing in disorder, naturally concluded that thieves were in the apartments, and, securing Gen. Waite's pistol, he commenced a search for them. Finding that the bath-room door, though unlocked, would not open, and that some one was standing against t, he demanded of the occupants that they should come out. Had their pract, he demanded of the occupants that they should come out. Had their practical joke ended at this point—had they opened the door, or had one of them spoken—the fearful catastrophe might have been averted; but they only kept silent and resisted Winn's effort to open the door. Finding that he could get no answer from them, and that he could not make them come out, he drew his not make them come out, he drew his pistol and fired through the door, the ball entering Gould's head. Gen. Waite then eried out in alarm, but it was for-ever too late. The leaden messenger had done its work. The practical joke had resulted in the almost instant death of Mr. Gould. As we have said, no blame can attach to the colored man. Had the two men been burglars in reality, he would have been considered a hero. As it was, he proved himself a courageous man, and only did what he invasion. only did what he imagined to be his duty, and what he was warranted in considering his duty, in defending his employer's property from the depredations of this research.

There is not a phase of this affair that is not more than ordinarily poinful.

Mr. Gould was in the very flush of manbood, a great favorite in society, prospered in his business, and with bright hopes for the future before him. In an instant of time, and in the midst of his hilarity over what was a very silly of his hilarity over what was a very silly joke, he was sent to his grave, and his friends and relatives are plunged into grief over the needless, foolish, and even foolhardy manner in which he came to his death. There is nothing in this homicide that can mitigate its horror. There is not an association connected with it that does not tend to prenected with it that does not tend to produce a lifelong regret. The man who shot him was an honest, faithful servant, shot him was an honest, faithful servant, who only did his duty, and yet must forever regret that he did it. Though Gen. Waite did not propose the joke, he must forever regret that he did not oppose it, or at least that he did not end it before it had gone so far. The death of his friend does not lie at his door, though he was a party to the joke; but though he was a party to the joke; but the regret will remain there all the same; and that regret will be so keen and so poignant that it will be forever a

In the midst of so much grief, and in considering an event so mournful and at the same time so unintentional in its consequences, it is hard to make harsh criticism, but it is none the less demanded. The fate of Mr. Gould ought jokers. It is only one more entry in the long catalogue of pain, misery, and death that has been caused by this very questionable form of diversion. Over and over again have long and painful sickness, insanity, and death been caused by this thoughtless and foolish practice. The joke of Mr. Gould and his friend was not a whit less reprehensible than that of the idiot who points what he supposes is an unloaded pistol at his friend, and finds out his mistake by the death of his victim, or of the joker who palms himself off as a ghost joker who palms himself off as a ghost upon some timid person, and frightens her into insanity. There is no harm in an innocent joke, provided it is done in the proper place, at the proper time, without intention of injuring a person or exposing him to public ridicule, and without the object of playing upon his fears, his sensitiveness, or his personal peculiarities or beliefs. No practical joker can be excused for playing his pranks upon one who does not enjoy them or appreciate them, or whose feelings are wounded by them. It seems to be the peculiar belief of this class that be the peculiar belief of this class that any one can be the victim of their fun any one can be the victim of their fun and has no reason to complain of the discomfort caused him. If practical jokers would confine their "put-up-jobs" to those of their own class, there would be no grounds for criticism; but they are not warranted in going any further. If they do, they must not com-

A LITTLE girl in Sunday-school, who had been pulling her doll to pieces dur-ing the week, was asked by the teacher: "What was Adam made of?" Answer— "Dust." "And what was Eve made of?" Answer-" Saw-dust."

A LADY writes an indignant note to a contemporary, in which, with true rustic innocence, she expresses a belief that editors never go to Heaven. We thought even country people knew that journalists never went anywhere. They don't get the chance. They just sit up nights thinking how to do good, until the tops of their heads wear holes through their bairs. Examples of the control of the contro hair.—Binghamton Democrat.

An impecunious young man started afoot from San Luis Obispo to Soledad, in California. Getting fatigued and desperate, he resolved to become a high-wayman. He had no weapon, and was physically insignificant; but strategy more than made up for these lacks. He built a fire in the woods near the road, to give the impression that a party was camped there, put his hat and coat on a log to represent a second man, and when a stage came along shouted: "Throw out that box, or you are a dead man." The driver dropped the treasure-box, which contained $320, and was glad to get away with his life.

A very rich old man had married a young wife and died suddenly, on which the widow raved like a maniac and exclaimed to the doctor who stood by the bedside of the deceased: "Oh, I'll not pelieve that my dear partner is dead: he could not die and leave me! No, no! he's alive—I'm sure he's alive! Tell me, doctor, don't you think so?'
"Madam," replied the medical man with much gravity, "I confess that it is possible he may be revived. I will apply the galvanic battery." "Oh, no, no," cried the grief-stricken widow. "Hard as it is to bear my fate, I will have no experiment against the law of nature. Let him year is posses." of nature. Let him rest in peace."

GEN. REUBEN was seated on a mackerel barrel, with his feet on a couple of sugar hogsheads, and had just given an account of how he froze them sliding down hill in the winter of '76. There was silence for a few minutes, interrupt ed by an interrogation from Mozart Daf fodil. "Do you mean, General, to have our understanding comprehend dat you froze boff of dem feet in one winter?" "Boff," replied the General, cutting off a piece of tobacco about the size of a toy barmonica. After another reign of silence the General demanded, "Do you doubt dat statement, sah?" "No," replied Mozart, "I was only thinking what a long, hard winter it must have been."

THOSE NEW YEAR'S BILLS.

Those New Year's bills, those New Year's bills,
How the long day their clamor fills
With ceaseless tramp of tiresome dan,
With bills that can no longer run,

Those New Year's bills, those New Year's bills,
What dismal fears their sight instills.
Of grin accounts of hygone times,
Of stern demands on scanty dimes.

Those New Year's bills; those New Year's bills! bills!

On last Saturday a man here was looking for some of his hogs that he had missed for several days, and had neared the river when he heard a cow beliowing. Upon going to the hard of the

ing. Upon going to the bank of the river and looking on the opposite side, he saw on a sandbar an alligator, a cow and a young calf. The alligator had the cow and calf between itself and the riverse and the riverse and the same than the riverse and riverse a cow and calf between itself and the river. He made a dart for the calf, when the cow rushed between them and a fearful fight ensued. While this was raging the calf got into the woods and faced about, bleating plaintively. The alligator was not more than seven feet long, and struck at the cow furiously with its tail. The cow avoided as many of these blows as possible, but yet received quite a number, one of which knocked her relling over for about ten feet. The alligator rushed upon her with open month, and tried to seize her by the nose, but she was up in time to catch it upon the horn under the throat, and threw it over backward, and before it could gut eatch it upon the horn under the throat, and threw it over backward, and before it could get another lick at her or defend itself she was on it again. Tossing it high into the air it fell into the water with a splash, and did not vonture to the land again. The cow, after rushing around looking for the enemy, ran to her calf and made tracks through the woods for home, looking back occasionally to see if she was pursued.—Americus (Ga.) Republican.

Doctoring brought no rehef, and I was finally advised to go abroad and seek the climate of my youth. In thermany and Switzerland, eminent physicians, after close examinations, declared my sufferings to arise from disease of the Kadneys, of long standing, and could do me no good. I was, however, benefited by the climate and consequently returned. No sooner had I been back and resumed my pastoral work, when the old trouble grew again so intense as to make life a burden. A few months ago I came in possession of one of Day's Kidney Pads, put if on, and the effects were frully wonderful. The pains at one grew less and are now, after wearing the second I'ad, entirely gone, and there can be no doubt that I am entirely cured, as I write this some weeks after its use, and am strong and book again the very picture of health. A Suggestion to Summer to prists. A suggestion to summer to jurists.

A change of climate is at all times more or less dangerous. There are elements in a new atmosphere which are injurious, especially when the system is exhausted by care and overwork and which should be guarded against. After careful observation we have come to the conclusion that Warner's Safe Kidney Cure is the best preventative for almosinjurions, especially when the system is exhausted by care and overwork, and which should be gnarded against. An Unfortunate Ram.

A few weeks since some miners discovered a very singular curiosity in the mountains near Bonanza City, Idaho— nothing less than the mammoth head and horns of a mountain ram grown into a pine tree. The skull was found firmly imbedded in the growing pine, the trunk of the latter being some eighteen inches in diameter, with the horns protrading, and one in its natural curve re-entering the wood eight inches. Mr. Fred Meyers, of the Challis and Bonanza stage line, soon heard of the "find," had the tree felled, and the section containing the ram's head neatly sawed off. Mr. Meyers has expressed the unique specimen to Thomas L. Kimball, general passenger and ticket agent of the Union Pacific, in whose office it is now on exhibition.

It was a source of much surmising yesterday upon the part of dozens of visitors at the Union Pacific headquarters as to how the horns became thus fastened, and how many years this lord of the sheep tribe has been impaled in the lonely mountains of Idaho. Some are of the opinion that the animal, in search of food, was caught in the forks of the tree scores of years ago, when it was a mere sapling, and unable to extricate itself, there died, the tree gradually growing over the skull. Such instances in the case of deer are very common, but none has ever been chronicled, or at least not reported, in which the wonderfully muscular mountain ram has met such a fate.

Another theory is that some Indian or old-time employee of the great fur companies received a straight-away hit from the ram; and in a fit of revenge hung his ramship up to recall the inci-dent of the unfortunate affair and indulge in remorse, but forgot to take him down. Another is that in one of those down. Another is that in one of those terrific battles in which mountain rams often indulge each other, this one was "dodged" by his antagonist at a very critical period, and a forked sapling received the onslaught, never after giving up its embrace. Certain it is the ram got in a very bad fix, is dead, and is one of the most valuable and curious specimens ever sent to Mr. Kumbull's specimens ever sent to Mr. Kimball's oilice.—Omaha Republican.

Some 30 years ago, says the Taunton Gazette, an interment was made in a cemetery in Swansey, Mass., in which the grave was laid with bricks at the sides and bottom and covered with a flat stone, hermetically sealed. Some 25 years subsequent the friends had occasion to open the grave for the purpose of removing the body to another place of sepulcher. On reaching the collin a most singular sight presented itself. Its entire surface, ton, bottom and sides, was overgrown with a thread-like vine, millions of fibers of which had entwined themselves together as completely as though braided by artificial means, forming a netting one inch in thickness, and its entire surface as even as though pressed out by some heavy weight. The ends were not covered, and the coffin had gone to decay, but was kept together and raised from its resting-place and deposited in a box intact through the adhesion of the vine above mentioned. A piece of it, about six inches square, was cut off, and is now in the possession of the father of the deceased, Mr. Wm. H. Wood of Swansey, in an excellent state of preservation. Its color was a dark brown. It is well worth examination. With no earth in the grave, it is a question of some interest where those vines took their origin.

The clergy of various denominations in Minneapolis have taken up the movement against extravagance at funerals. of which there have been a few signs recently in certain parts of the East. circular was prepared, sent out and signed, which sets forth that there has often been observed in funerals needless confusion and pain owing to the unwise action of well meaning friends, and that custom has inclined to make them more existom has incurred to make them more expensive, until, in some cases, the desire to render loving tribute to the dead, or to conform to what is thought to be required, involves a burdensome ontlay. Accordingly, it is recommended that so far as my be, funerals be from the house and that the services be separated from the interment. The advantages of this plan are enumerated as follows: It leaves the family to take farewell of its dead undisturbed by onlookers; it di-minishes by so much the pang of the most grievous hour in the whole event; it gives a peculiar tenderness and power of consolation to the presence of friends at the devotional service; it does away with the inevitable confusion that attends the removal of the coffin and the marshaling of a funeral procession, and removes the necessity of attendant vehicles which form so large a part of the customary expense. At Bird-in-Hand, in Lancaster County, Pa., the remains of the late Rebecca Evans were buried. She was without doubt one of the strangest women of her time, and the story of her life and sur-roundings is romantic and remarkable. She died at the advanced age of 88, and was never married. She had lived alone for the past 30 years, and for years and years before that lived in company with her brother, who was insane. The man died about 30 years ago, and for several years before his death was confined just outside the house in a large pen, made by building a high fence. Before this he ran about the country dressed in a frock, and to this the people who lived in the neighborhood objected; hence his confinement. The property for years has not been kept in repairs, and the buildings, which consist of a two and a half story house and small barn, looked 20 years ago as though they had been deserted for a century. There was not a sash in the house that did not have the glass broken out; some of the shutters were hanging on one hinge and some lying under the windows; the fence about the yard falling over, boards dropped off the barn and holes rotted in the roof. Part of the pen in which her brother was kept is still standing? Across one field near Mill Creek, which runs along the farm, stood a two-story and a half tenement house which has only been occupied for a year or two during a period of 25 years; consequently it is in about the same condition as the other buildings.—New York Star.

Jabesh Snow, Gunning Cove, N. S., writes: "I was completely prostrated with the Asthme, but hearing of Dr. Thomas' Eelectric Oil, I procured a bottle, and it did me so much good, that I got another, and before it was used I was well. My son was cured of a bad cold by the use of half a bottle. It goes like wildfire, and makes cures wherever it is used. Sold by A. J. Roberts, and Croft & Sherer.

Congressman Williams to Address the People of Janesville Next Sat-urday i venieg.

Arrangements have been made for a Republican rally at Emppin's hall, next Saturday evening, at which time and place Hon. Charles G. Williams will address the people on the political issues of the day. Good music will be provided and a good time for all. Every voter should be there to hear a fair honest statement of the record and claims of the Republican party, and the name and fame of the speaker should cause the hall to be packed with eager listeners. Let the THE Wisconsin Shoe Company will re- rally next Saturday night be an enthusi-

BRIEFLETS.

-These days are daisies. □-Mirthful minstrelsy to-night.

---A large number of our citizens went to Center to-day to attend the Young America fair.

—A crazy-drunk Norwegian was yesterday sentenced to five days in jail for drunkenness. -Every smoker should read what

James S. Clark has to say in another columu about eigars. He has some good

-Dr. St. John and C. L. Valentine took a look around the take yesterday to see the prospects of game. They didn't see much.

-The Opera house will be packed tomorrow night with those eager to hear what Congressman Williams has to say about political matters.

-Wyler is again blockading up the sidewalk with empty kegs which he is shipping back, and full kegs and cases which he is getting in. Just like him.

-The Wisconsin Shoe Company proposes to enlarge its factory by the building of an addition to its present building and in another column advertises for -The proceedings of the first annual meeting of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Association have been printed in pamphlet form, and are being distributed by the Secretary, E. B. Reimstreet.

-The Republican Club had a meeting last night and decided on other plans of work than those of parading the streets in uniforms. There will be no lessening of enthusiasm and enterprise however.

-James Clark, who has had considerable dealings with Colm's eight factory in Chicago, and who thinks Cohn's cigars are "the boss," received a box of the finest of the fine to-day, and with his usual big-heartedness has opened them up for the benefit of his friends.

-Mrs. S. S. Lang, of Beaver Dam, arrived in the city resterday, and left for home this afternoon. Her husband occuped several pulpits in different parts of this county some years ago, and both he and his wife have many acquaintances here. He has now retired from the active ministry.

-The Milwaukee Sentinel of yesterday, says in regard to Sprague's Georgia Minstrels which are to appear at the Opera house to-night: "Sprague's Georgia Minstrels closed their short season here last night, leaving a favorable impression." They appeared in Racine last night, and arrived here this after-

It's all well enough to import one's medicines, but in watermelon season China seems along ways to send to have a prescription filled. -The First ward has a bright little fouryear-old boy, who has a little baby sister, who makes up for talk by squealing, and when she is mad she squeals with an uncommon enthusiasm. The other day the little four-year-old roused up from a thoughful mood, and said-"Mamma, does everybody have to die?" "Yes, my child." "Will you die sometime, mamma?" "Yes." "Will baby sister die, too, sometime?" "Yes, sometime, but why do you ask?" "Oh, 'cause, I was thinking that if she has to die, she will squeal like the deuce."

-An expert dare devil calling himself Dare, drew a crowd at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets to-day, to see him perform on a tight rope stretched across Main street from the top of Lappin's block to the top of the Myers house. He walked, stood on his head, laid on his back, went through trapeze feats, walked like a fly with his head down and feet up, and performed all sorts of seemingly miraculous feats at that dizzy height, while the crowd stood below and gaped and wondered. At convenient intervals be took up a collection to defray the expenses of his show, and as there was no expense for cent or light, the receipts were mostly profit.

THE WEATHER:

BEPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DREGGISTS, The thermometer at 6 o'clock last night stood at 67 degrees above; at 1 o'clock A. M. to-day at 57 degrees above; at 7 o'clock A. M. at 51 degrees above; and at 1 o'clock P. M. at 74 degrees above. Clear.

The indications to-day are for the lake regions, easterly to southerly winds, slowly rising temperature, falling barometer, clear or fair weather and light rains near Lake Superior.

It is said that the Times' report about the attempt of the defense to prove JANESVILLE MARKEELS. that Snell was implicated and that the deed was done for money had no Reported for the Gazette by Bump & Gray, foundation in fact. In fact that reporter seems to have set horners buzzing about his ears, and to have caused the paper he represents to be looked upon as not very reliable in reporting murder trials.

During the first part of the trial Mrs. Mack and the jurymen boarded at the same hotel, but at the suggestion of the Court this arrangement has been broken up, and they now occupy different quarters. It would probably make no differ- fair ence with the result, but would give folk a chance to talk.

Constable Taylor who was reported by the press as being rather confused in his testimony, arrived home last evening. His bushel. side of the affair is that on the trial here he swore to certain conversations overheard by him between Mrs. Mack and Dickerson. Some of the talk was so filthy that he did not care to repeat it on the trial here, as there were many ladies in the room, and the attorneys did not deem it necessary for him to do so, but on the trial at Jefferson they demanded the talk he heard, and he had to give it all The cross-examination then probed him for the reason why he did not tell the whole truth on the trial here, and this was the only foundation for the report.

In the case yesterday Mr. Todd, of Boloit, was sworn as to there being mud on Dickerson's stockings. W. A. Lawrence testified as an expert that the handwriting on notes found in jail and the poetry found in Dickerson's room was that of different persons. J. L. Croft testified to the same effect. Dr. Whiting was sworn as to the probable result of the blow alleged to have been given Mack by a pitcher in his wife's hands. Dr. Palmer, who had examined Dickerson's stockings with a microscope, testified that he found them soiled with mud, manure, horsehair and one drop of blood. Steve Snell testified that he saw Dickerson print the notes which he claimed to have received from Mrs. Mack.

Evening sessions have been ordered by the Judge.

MRS ROLLOWAY'S FUNERAL. The funeral services of Mrs. LeRoy T. Holloway were held this forenoon at the house, Rev. T. P. Sawin officiating, and the remains being taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment. This death casts a heavy gloom upon the household, leaving as she does two little children of her own, one a mere babe, and three other children to whom she has filled the place of mother, as nearly as any one could possibly have done. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dayton, of Orfordville, and thus another home is made sad, as well as that in which she has been so much loved as mother and wife. She was but thirty-two years of age, and long life seemed promised her until a little more than a week before her death, when she was taken with a severe attack of diphtheria, which overcame her. She was a woman highly respected by all and greatly beloved by those who were honthem up and return them to him, but est sympathies are extended the husband,
